RELEASE: As Ballots Continue to be Counted, Young Kim Lies About Campaign Representative Escorted from LA Registrar of Voters

Fullerton, Calif. – As ballots are still being counted for the 39th Congressional race at the Los Angeles Registrar of Voters, the Young Kim campaign released a statement blatantly lying about a campaign representative escorted from the Registrar. In spite of the claims made by the Young Kim campaign, it was, in fact, a Kim representative that was asked to leave the Registrar after harassing employees despite repeated warnings.

On Saturday night, the Kim representative reportedly continually interfered with workers, touched screens, and demanded more information, before she was asked to leave the building at 7:23 pm by Registrar supervisors. This follows reports of Kim and Republican representatives slowing down the counting process by attempting to challenge ballots with Latino surnames and obstructing employees from reviewing signatures, while thousands of votes continue to be counted in the race. Moreover, two Kim representatives were caught by County employees while flipping through ballots and taking photographs on Sunday night and were asked to leave the building at 5:50 pm. As of Sunday, November 11th, the race for California's 39th District is still officially too close to call.

The Cisneros campaign strongly encourages members of the press to contact the public affairs office of the Los Angeles Registrar of Voters with inquiries at (800) 815-2666 and mediainfo@rrcc.lacounty.gov.

Nic Jordan, Campaign manager for the Gil Cisneros campaign, released the following statement:

“I welcome the news that the Young Kim campaign will work to ensure all ballots are counted in an orderly and timely manner, as their actions from the last several days would suggest otherwise. Hopefully, the Kim campaign will re-evaluate its behavior following their representative being asked to leave the Registrar. I look forward to the Kim campaign joining the Cisneros campaign in respecting the work of Registrar employees and ensuring every ballot and every voice is heard and counted.”
